

SOVIET SPYING "UNABATED"

U.S. SERVICE CHECK

From Our Own Correspondent
NEW YORK, Sunday.

Mr. Allen Dulles, director, of the Central Intelligence Agency, said to-day that the world-wide subversive activities of the Soviet Union were continuing unabated in spite of the "smiling" of Soviet leaders.

"Looking at the hard evidence that we have, I do not see that we have any real reason to believe that, certainly in the covert field and the field of subversion, there has been any relaxation whatever," he said.

"It is up to the Secretary of State to judge the broad political field. But as I look at it, the question is: are they stopping any of their subversive activities in the various parts of the world where they are particularly trying to operate?"

"No, I do not think they are. I do not see any change whatever." The Soviet intelligence network was probably larger than any other, but while the collection was good, analysis probably was not so good.
